

Amelia Garza, MBA'23, MA, CFRE

Amelia Garza is an independent contractor who works with nonprofit organizations to help align their business practices with their values. With almost a decade of nonprofit work, Amelia has worked with alumni and grateful patient populations, managed volunteers and board members, as well as worked on integrating best practices and change management with the organizations she has served. She is currently a Baumhart Scholar at Loyola's MBA program, has a master's degree from Texas Woman's University in multicultural women and gender studies; and a bachelor's degree from Augustana College in preoccupational therapy, psychology, and women and gender studies. In 2021, Garza, with Jennifer T. Holmes, MA, co-authored and published two articles, Fundraiser Bill of Rights: Creating Equitable Partnerships©™ and Why Hiring Diverse Candidates is Not the First Step©. You can reach her at amelialgarza@gmail.com or find her on LinkedIn: <https://www.linkedin.com/in/amelialgarza/>.