

Jewelette Christopher has supported philanthropy at some of our nation's finest institutions. She currently leads the fundraising efforts for IDEAL programs and initiatives at Stanford University, including a forthcoming Racial Justice Institute. Prior to that, Jewel raised funds in support of the USC Marshall School of Business. She has worked in healthcare advancement at the University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston, where she raised funds for the UTHealth Schools of Medicine and Public Health. She also helped complete a centennial campaign with Rice University. Jewel is a two-time alumna of the University of Southern California.